STARFISH STORY – A STORY OF STUDENT IMPACT

BY JANELLE ALEJO

Marcus* is a student in my sixth grade English class. His first language is Spanish, so it is sometimes difficult for him to understand the work. When he gets frustrated, Marcus like to joke around and get off task. easily distracted from his work. As a solution and to try and combat these behaviors, my partner teacher decided to move him to sit near me. I would have to constantly remind Marcus to pay attention during class and to do his work. After a while the reminders stopped and I realized that he just needed a little extra support explaining the lessons. I am proud to say that since we started working together, Marcus is doing great! He is working hard to stay on tasks and turn his work in on time. =Student Pseudonym
